

Fire Diary of John Ristuccia

Introduction

Dad kept a hand written diary of his activities as a New York City fireman. Each entry in the diary describes a run in response to an alarm signal. For each entry, Dad noted the date, the box number, the time (sometimes with a second time which is unexplained), the nature of the fire and any special bell signals associated with alarm. Dad's record starts on his first day as probationary fireman and ends on his last day as an active member of FDNY. This covers the period from 6 June, 1936 to 26 January, 1960 which is a time span of 21 years, 9 months. Dad was fireman for 20 years and a lieutenant for 1 year, 9 months.

Assignments

Dad's first assignment was to 258 Engine which is located in Long Island City; he worked there through the war years. Dad's stay with 258 Engine was his longest stay in any house, ie, almost eight years. In January 1946, Dad transferred to 242 Engine which is located in Brooklyn on Fifth Avenue near the Verazano Bridge. He did not stay at 242 very long, ie, less than two years. He then transferred to 250 Engine which is located on Foster Avenue just off McDonald Avenue. He stayed with 250 Engine for a little more than five years. In January 1953, Dad transferred to 219 Engine which was located on Dean Street not too far from St Augustine. In 1977, 219 Engine moved to a brand new house which was still on Dean St but a little closer to St Augustine. The old house is now a historic landmark. He remained at 219 for almost three years. In November 1955, he joined Squad 4 which was just being formed (Squad 4 was disbanded in 1976). Dad was promoted to lieutenant out of Squad 4. Once a lieutenant, Dad moved around a lot until finally getting a permanent assignment at 211 Engine which is located on Hooper St somewhat near the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

The Bells

In the period when Dad was a fireman, all signaling was done via the bell system. When you pulled an alarm box, it sent a coded signal to the central station which told the central station the box number. For each box number, there was a card that told the central station operator what the first alarm response was to be. He then transmitted the information over the borough wide bell system circuit and this was received in each fire house. The fireman on watch (at the watch desk) wrote box number into the journal and determined if his engine or truck company was supposed to respond. Normally, what came over the bell system was just the box number. If the box number was 541 the bells would ring five times, pause, four times, pause and one time; then repeat. Much more complicated information was sent over the system by using various codes. For multiple alarms the box number was preceded by a code for the number of alarms. If a second alarm at box 541, the transmission would be: 22 pause 5 pause 4 pause and 1. For a third alarm the precedent was 33 and so on. Special calls to engine, truck or squad companies had precedents of 5 for engines, 7 for trucks and 8 for squads. The most troublesome bell signal was 5-5-5-5; this signaled the death of a fireman in the line of duty.

The Details

In the tables that follow, I have entered the data just as Dad wrote it. Anything that I added is in Italics. I also included some key events like the days that we were born, Pearl Harbor, VE and VJ days and Dad's notations about vacations, sick leave and light duty.

Notation

L 128	= temporary assignment to a ladder company, Dad called it a "detail"
E 247	= temporary assignment to an engine company, Dad called it a "detail"
41st Batt	= temporary assignment, drive battalion chief
12th Div	= temporary assignment, drive deputy chief
3-7153-2	"3" = special alarm box (usually in a bldg) code 2 referred to the box location or terminal
5-7-7133	Only 1 engine (5) and 1 ladder (7) to box 7133
2-2-27	second alarm at box 27
"5"	designator for engine company
"7"	designator for ladder company
"8"	designator for squad company
5-7162-258	Engine 258 respond to box 7162 which is outside its 1st alarm assignment
8-1659-4	Squad 4 respond to box 1659 which is outside its 1st alarm assignment
15-249-250	Temporary relocation of E 250 to E 249 quarters
Box	If box location from internet is different than Dad's notes, I used Dad's location
